

Class Act

How gaming helps teachers, students in today's schools

Rekha Puthanveettil, teacher, ASPAM Indian International School Sharjah

Initiating special opportunities and projects that give an opportunity for students to learn practical life skills through games and other interactive sessions should be the key focus of all schools. These kinds of enriching experiences enable students to work collaboratively and engage in many activities. Students exposed to these unique experiences have a positive outlook, energy, and zeal to win the game, gain satisfaction with the learning acquired. Schools should create special opportunities for students to try new approaches through innovation, thus enabling every child to excel and be groomed into productive citizens of the future.

Aiswarya Ramesh, Grade 12, New Indian Model School, Dubai

Game-based learning gaining popularity in UAE classrooms

Sarwat Nasir

KT NANO EDIT

and very engaging. How engaging? 1,500 questions answered in the first week of implementation.

"As active learners, my students enjoy game-based learning. Only