Should students quit school to kick-start an influencer career?

Kids weigh social media career vs higher education

Amrutha Sunil Nair, Aspam Indian International School, Sharjah

In my opinion, education and social media should be balanced in such a way that will allow students to get the best of both. Education to me is not only about mastering a few concepts, it is also a means to develop social skills and values. It is key in analysing situations and identifying the truth from fraud, especially when a lot of information is now available online.
